WEDDINGS AND ENGAGEMENTS

Miss Bonaparte Will Wed the Count de Moltke.

Notwithstanding the absorbing interest which the world of politics presented the past week, social, domestic and matrimonial affairs around this section were of a character so important that it is safe to them in every detail. The gorgeous arrangements made for the Vanderbilt-Wilson wedding were no less absorbing matters of conversation here, where the high principles are tolerably well known, as in New York, where they are recognized stars in the social firmament. Inasmuch as the proposed marriage of their son was so distasteful to the Vanderbilts, his decision to wait another year indicates more than the average amount of common sense. Interest in that part of the Vanderbilt side of the controversy which alleged that the young lady was at least ten years older than her flance has brought the truth to the surface. The high keeper of New York's vital statistics has disclosed the exact date of her birth, and proves that Miss Wilson entered this world of smiles, tears, ambitions and disappointments only three years sooner than Mr. Cornelius Vanderbilt, jr., but who, if all accounts be true, is not yet prepared to desert the paternal roof. The wedding announcements hereabouts have contributed greatly to pleasant gossip. That of Mrs. Bugher and Capt. Nicol Ludlow of the navy was a great surprise, al-though some suggestion of the likelihood of such a termination was understood by their most intimate friends. Mrs. Bugher is now at Deer Park with her mother, Mrs. Wash. McLean. The wedding, it is now understood, will not take place until the fall. Capt. Ludlow is now in California. 'The wedding of Miss Bessie Gorman and Mr. Wilton J. Lambert will be attended by only their family circles and personal friends, but it will be a beautiful event. The bride is one of the most charming of a group of unsually interesting sisters. The Gorman girls are perfect housekeepers Both at their city and country homes they divide the cares and responsibilities of the management between them and take the greatest pleasure in their respective tasks. At the wedding next Wednesday evening the bride will be unattended, but the groom will have a Princeton friend, Mr. L. F. Little of Louisville, to stand up with him. Rev. J. Havens Richards, S. Here's an idea for the entertainment of the stay-at-homes, or perhaps it would suit as a mid-week dissipation at a sumsuit as a mid-week dissipation at a summer resort. Up in Lynn, Mass., the other day, a matron gave a spinster reception. The invitations were in rhyme, and were confined to ladies between the ages of forty and eighty, who had during their lives received and declined proposals of marriage. There were 100 of these ladies present. Luncheon was served in the barn, which was handsomely decorated in lavender, light green and purple, and twelve matrons and twelve young ladies cared for matrons and twelve young ladies cared for the huge spinster cake.

American girls who have married into the English aristocracy are well to the front in carrying out the duties and obli-gations of their station. The young Duch-ess of Marlborough has already opened several institutions and agricultural shows; Mrs. George N. Curzon, who, by the way, is said to be looking handsomer than ever, has assisted the Duchess of Devonshire at a fancy fair, and was one of the guests at the prime minister's historic house party, which the Princess of Wales and the Duch-ess of York honored with their presencea much greater distinction, by the way, than a visit from the jolly, ubiquitous

Mrs. and the Misses Brice were among the party of Americans entertained this week by the Duke and Duchess of Marl-borough at Cissbury, a place taken by them for the races at Ascot. The Brice party, with ex-Secretary and Mrs. Fair-child, Mrs. Slater and Miss Gwynne of this city, are among those who enjoyed the races with the duke and duchess from the royal inclosure. The Prince and Princess of Wales occupied a splendid place near by, which had been loaned them for the meet this summer the Newport villa, Bellevue avenue, of Mr. William Waldorf Astor. In fact, they have taken a lease of the place for three years, and intend partly to refurnish it. It is said that in consideration of the extended term for which the rental has been made there is a slight reduction in the set annual price, which is $15,000, which the Brices paid for Beaulieu last which the Brices paid for Beaulieu last summer. Mrs. Brice and the Misses Brice will go to Newport immediately after they return from Europe, which will be to-ward the close of this month.

A young lady in Washington has just received a cablegram from Miss Louise Bonaparte, daughter of Mrs. Jerome N. Bo naparte, announcing her engagement to Count de Moltke, son of the Danish ambassador at Paris, who is himself in the diplomatic corps. As this information comes from Miss Bonaparte's most intimate friend, its authenticity is beyond question and will be a pleasant surprise to the large circle of acquaintances of the Bonaparte family. Miss Bonaparte is very good-looking and a charming girl. She made her debut at a magnificent ball at the Arlington a year before her father's timent, although most of her school life has been spent in France.

Electric Lighting and Other Uses of Power From Garbage.

Garbage and town refuse disposal is one matter where the citles of Europe are far ahead of those of this country. An ideal plant of this kind is that at Rochdale, England. Investigators have all agreed that burning is the best way to dispose of the accun ulations. This preference is due to the fact that by this method not only is all organic matter liable to putrefy and become a menace to the health of the community destroyed, but it has been found by actual trial that the heat derived from the burning of this refuse may be used for the production of steam, which can be utilized for commercial purposes, and the revenue received from this source may be sufficien to more than pay for the cost of burning. There are no less than fifty-five such destructors in different parts of England. The health committee of Rochdale, a man-ufacturing town of 73,000 inhabitants, recently adopted the method, with the idea of ultimately using the steam produced for electric lighting purposes. It has been found that this rough, unscreened refuse running as much as 35 per cent of clinker and ash, will evaporate 1.6 pounds of water for every pound of refuse burned, under bollers built to produce steam at 120 pounds pressure. Coal burned under the same boilers evaporated seven pounds of water per pound of coal. The two boilers have a grate surface of forty-five square have a grate surface of forty-five square feet each. In building the two destructor cells a large combustion chamber, com-mon to both, was provided between them and the boilers, so that the gases could in-termingle, and that time should be allowed for the combustion of gases before they came in contact with the comparatively cold surface of the boiler, noting the fac

It is interesting to note that it is not necessary to use coal to aid in the burning of this refuse. The plant has been able to produce 340 brake horse power, burning two tons of refuse per hour. This high efficiency is obtained with ordinary boilers by using a forced draught. The weight of the refuse is reduced two-thirds and the volume three-fourths.

The author says in conclusion: "The disposal of two-thirds of the refuse completely is an important matter, but when to this is added the fact that the remaining third is rendered quite free from any

GEORGE H. GHLES.
GEORGE H. GHLES.
GEORGE H. GHLES., son of Alexander and Margaret A. Giles, was not beloved husband of Rebecca A. Giles, was born at Saugerties, Ulster county, New York, July 31, 1855.
When he was about two years of age his parents removed to Washington, where he has ever since resided.
From early boyhood up he evinced a strong liking for such employments as had for their object the salvation of souls or lives. Naturally, therefore, he identified himself with the fire department and the temperance cause.
He had all the qualifications necessary for an ideal fireman, health, strength, courage, valor and a heart full of tender sympathy for any one in distress.
He was appointed a member of truck B on August 1, 1888; was transferred to No. 5 Engine Company February 1, 1889; transferred back to truck B April 16, 1890; transferred, with rank of assistant foreman, to No. 9 Engine Company August 28, 1893, in which position he lost his life in the line of duty Monday, May 18, 1896.
He was a social fevorite and had hosts of friends, to whom his death came as a thunderbolt.
"No warning giv'n: unceremonious fate! A sudden rush from life's meridian loss!

GUNDER. In loving remembrance of our beloved daughter and sister, EFFIE W. GUNDER, who died one year ago today, June 20, 1895.

On, now lonely the days. On, now dreaty the lagit;
Since leaving me, mother, dear, out of your sight;
But God, in His kindness, relieved you from pain,
And has shown me my loss was alone for your gain.
Cur meeting in future is all that I crave.
